

Time Management for Professionals

Practical Workplace Training Module

reduce waste ◆ increase throughput ◆ improve quality

A Foundation of Productivity

In today's information world, to be successful you have to be effective at getting the important things done, so it is no surprise that our time management workshop has become one of the most popular in our productivity suite.

During the workshop, participants are challenged to explore their personal behavioural styles and examine how those behaviours affect their productivity. The concepts and exercises challenge participants to recognise the distractions that draw them away from the most important goals and activities and also provide tools and a framework for developing new time management skills.

The workshop provides tools and systems both for individuals and teams to take away and apply directly within their workplace to ensure effective communication and a shared understanding of where effort should be applied as a priority. Participants learn to recognise when they are losing focus from their most important goals and how to overcome these distractions
